THE SOCIETY OF CONSERVATION BIOLOGY

The Society for Conservation Biology (SCB) is a non-profit organization dedicated to facilitating, promoting, and advancing the scientific study and conservation of biological diversity. While our historical roots were founded in the field of biology, we recognize that conservation in today's complex world requires a globalized approach that maximizes collaboration amongst professionals from all fields. With more than 4,000 members worldwide, professionals, students, organizations, and supporters collaborate together in a way that transcends borders to advance the SCB vision and mission.

Vision

We envision a world where people understand, value, and conserve the diversity of life on Earth and where SCB, a globally diverse, equitable, and inclusive community of professionals, students, organizations, and supporters, serves as a leading voice for the scientific study and conservation of Earth's biological diversity.

Mission

To advance the science and practice of conserving Earth's biological diversity.

SCB Europe Section

The Europe Section was formed to promote conservation biology and its application to conserve biological diversity in Europe. The principal goals of the Section are:

BRIEF GUIDE TO PRAGUE

Looking at the map we can find that Prague really is a focal point; the heart and centre of the continent. However, Prague is not only the geographical heart of Europe, but also a place where for centuries different nations were mixing and different cultures were merging, influencing each other. Those who walk through Prague, walk through the history of Europe and its cultural richness.

For more than one thousand and one hundred years, visitors to Prague have been trying to give Prague a suitable name: stone Prague, golden Prague, magic Prague, hundred-spired Prague, Prague, mother of the all cities... Each of these names highlights one of its many attractive features.

Hundred-spired Prague – as this name suggests, Prague is the city of architectural treasures. It might be impossible to count all the large and small spires of Prague's churches, palaces and houses. This city has been developing for more than one thousand years, and over the course of time many memorable buildings have been built. In spite of often having been destroyed over time, Prague has been able to keep its grand architectural legacy. It excels in Romanesque monuments and it is known as a world-renowned work of Gothic city planning. The re-catholicization of the country was accompanied by a remarkable development of the Baroque style. Hundreds of artists, mainly from Italy and Germany, gave Prague its Baroque appearance, which the city has been preserving since that time. The countenance of Prague reflects every cultural period and every artistic style.

The name Magic Prague is known all over the world. Doctor Faust's Prague, Golem's Prague – this name was given to the city after the mythical clay giant symbolizing Jewish magic. Rudolphian Prague – after Emperor Rudolf II, who contributed to its reputation to a great extent. This emperor of alchemists, the admirer of occultism and Maecenas gathered in Prague one of the biggest collections of art of that time. The remains of this collection, which are still preserved in Prague, are remarkable. However, the emperor left behind something that cannot be taken from the city – the atmosphere of mystery.

THE CZU CAMPUS

The Congress takes place in the campus of Czech University of Life Sciences Prague (CZU). The campus is about 20 minutes drive from the city centre. The campus is situated in the northwest suburb of Prague – in the city district Suchdol. It is a quiet garden-suburb with a few small protected areas near-by. Due to its location, Prague is a very good starting point for field excursions across the whole Bohemia.

The modern campus offers a concentration of all services and facilities in one place. There are six Faculties with classrooms and lecture theatres, two congress halls, students' dormitories, Menza (a student restaurant), restaurants and bars, parking etc. The main venue of the conference is situated to a modern Congress Centre of the University. All these facilities are within 10 minutes by foot around the campus. There are 2 hotels in the immediate vicinity of the campus.
